True cats, larger than the modern tiger, short-legged rhinoceroses, mastodons with tusks in both the upper and lower jaw and a great variety of wolflike carnivora made their home in Nebraska in the tertiary period when that state was an expanse of swampy lowland, covered with vegetation not unlike that of the Amazon wilderness of the present day.

ACQUAINTANCE HOUR

Feature of State Sunday School Convention.

All over Kentucky there are men and women who are doing fine things in their own Sunday Schools, some are pastors, some are superintendents and some are teachers. Then there are a lot of people who serve as county officers, giving very much of their time and energy to helping all the schools in their counties to do better work and get more people into their schools. Many of these have never met the workers outside of their own counties. There will be an opportunity at the State Convention for these to get together, learn each other's names, tell some of the successes they have won, and learn how to solve some of the problems they have met. One of the great blessings that comes from a large convention is the making of new friendships.

American canned salmon is favorably known throughout the entire world. The exports of it amount to $7,000,000 a year.

IS A PROMINENT EDUCATOR

President R. H. Crossfield, Enthusiastic Sunday-School Worker, is on Convention Program.

There are some people who are able to do many things, and do them all well. Dr. Crossfield was for many years a successful pastor, and organized in his church a fine Adult Bible Class. Later he was called to the presidency of a great university, and made such a success of that there was added the presidency of a Bible college for the training of ministers. In whatever position he is placed he is always ready to give freely of his gifts to helping in any movement that is trying to make the world better. It is a difficult matter for such a man to so adjust his time that he can accept the invitations that come to him. It is a great pleasure to the Sunday-school workers of the state that Dr. Crossfield can take part in the annual Sunday-school convention to be held at Somerset, October 5-8.

SOUTH SHOULD BUILD STANDARD ROADS

"If there ever was a time when the need and the opportunity for improving Virginia's roads marched together, that time is now." This declaration by Richmond Times-Dispatch applies as well to other Southern states. It also suggests the way in which the South's road improvement program should be attacked.

Just as cities in the West profited by the mistakes of the older cities in the East, and built broader streets looking to future as well as immediate traffic requirements, so the South should profit by the mistakes of the thickly populated Northern states and adopt a standard type of road. This does not mean wider and more costly roads, as in the case of streets, but roads of a single standard type as opposed to the many and unsatisfactory types found throughout the North.

Highway Engineers are unanimously agreed that successful road building must include a stable foundation and a wearing surface suited to all types of traffic and involving low maintenance charges. There are just two types of roads within the resources of prosperous communities which can be so combined as to meet these requirements and at a cost not exceeding that paid for these highways when built as separate or distinct types. They are the asphalt macadam road and the concrete road, which are cheaper, stronger and more satisfactory when properly combined in the form of a concrete foundation and a natural asphalt macadam wearing surface.

Where a road is of the asphalt macadam type, any defect in the foundation causes trouble. When roads are built of concrete throughout, any neglect or carelessness in workmanship is fatal. Saturation and subsequent drying of slabs means expansion and contraction inviting upheaval and disintegration. But when concrete is used as a foundation, the asphalt macadam wearing surface acts as a water-shedding material keeping conditions more constant both as to moisture and temperature changes. The unyielding concrete in turn keeps the asphalt macadam wearing surface from breaking down. Furthermore, the latter imparts to the road the resiliency or elasticity required for both horse and motor traffic.

This type of road has been thoroughly tested on city streets, suburban highways, park drives and country roads. Costs have ranged between $11,500 to $13,500 per mile for roads 16 feet in width. Philadelphia built sections of her great Northeast Boulevard in this way at lower cost than some states have paid for water-bound macadam. The taxpayers of Monroe county, Michigan, are building 40 miles of the type, the concrete foundation including 6-inch concrete curbs between which will be placed a 2-inch wearing surface of natural asphalt macadam.

Roads of this type running from city to city and state to state would profit the South far beyond anything she can hope to achieve by building roads in the customary hit-or-miss fashion.
